Description

The museum has several departments: ethnographic, historical, archaeological, art and educational one. Here you can see an ethnographic exhibition that shows the monuments associated with the culture and folk art of the Głubczyce region - everyday items, household appliances and agricultural equipment. The archaeological exhibition presents monuments from random findings in the Głubczyce region and archaeological research. The historical exhibition presents sights describing the history of the Głubczyce region from prehistoric times to 1945 (period of World War II). The art department exhibits works of art from the fields of painting, graphics, sculpture and crafts. Guided tours take place in groups or individually. The museum also has a viewing tower from which you can observe the Sudetenland and the Carpathian mountains. The museum offers themed lessons.
